~~PRELIMINARY STATEMENT~~
PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is the Answer Brief of JOHN F. CHAFIN, Leon County Tax Collector. This party shall be known as "the Tax Collector" in this brief.

The Respondent, DICK BRAND, the Leon County Property Appraiser, shall be referred to as "the Property Appraiser."

The Respondent, KATIE TUCKER, Executive Director of the Florida Department of Revenue, shall be referred to as "DOR."

The Petitioner, CAPITAL CITY COUNTRY CLUB, shall be known as "CCCC."

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND FACTS

Respondent, Tax Collector, accepts and adopts the Statement of the Case and Facts set forth by CCCC in their Initial Brief, except CCCC, at the bottom of page 3, states:

. . . the Respondent Property Appraiser ignored the change [the 1980 amendment to section 196.199, Fla. Stats.] and continued to assess the Club as the owner of the 192 acres in issue.

In fact, in all years prior to 1989, CCCC, or its predecessors, had annually paid the ad valorem tax on its 192 acre country club. Prior to 1989, it had never claimed an exemption from such tax, nor had it ever filed (and has yet to file) an application for exemption from ad valorem real property taxes, as is required under section 196.199(5), Florida Statutes.

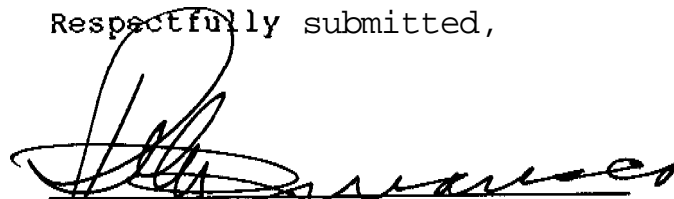

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The Summary of Argument, Argument as to Points I, II and 111, and all authorities cited thereto as set forth in the Answer Brief of the Property Appraiser are adopted by the Tax Collector as the complete and total answer brief of the Tax Collector.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the Summary of Argument, the arguments thereto, and the authorities cited in the Property Appraiser's Answer Brief, it is respectfully submitted that governmental leaseholds which are being used by non-governmental entities for private purposes are subject to ad valorem taxation, regardless of the governmental entity which may be the lessor. In the case of municipal property and property held by agencies of municipalities, the Florida Constitution requires that the entire property be subject to the local ad valorem tax on real and tangible personal property.

Respectfully submitted,
