STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND FACTS

This is an original proceeding pursuant to article III, section 16(c), Florida Constitution. The Florida Attorney General has petitioned this Court for a declaratory judgment determining the validity of the Florida Legislature's 2002 joint resolution of apportionment, House Joint Resolution 1987, which adopts apportionment Plan S17S0036 (the "2002 Plan"). Marion County, Florida, and the City of Ocala, Florida, oppose the 2002 Plan because of the way its state Senatorial redistricting impacts Marion County. This opposition is unrelated to partisan politics, racial, ethnic, or language considerations. Rather, Marion County and Ocala oppose the 2002 Plan because it splits Marion County among four separate state senatorial districts, not one of which is predominantly within Marion County. [A 1 (maps).] Marion County is the only county in the state divided into four Senatorial districts in which the county's voters do not have a majority vote in any one of the districts.

Florida's total population, 15,982,378, divided by 40 Senate districts, yields an optimum Senate district of 399,559. Marion County's population of 258,916 is nearly two-thirds of that optimum number, but the plan fails to recognize Marion County's significant population as a community of interest. [A 2 (demographics).] The 2002 Plan unnecessarily achieves population deviation of only 0.03 percent, sacrificing Marion County's interests, which could have been protected without even approaching the 10 percent deviation that the law presumptively allows.

Under the 2002 Plan, Marion County becomes a part of four different Senatorial districts, with Marion County voters constituting a numerical minority in all four districts [A 1 (maps); A 4 (district by county statistics)]:

District	% of district voters from Marion County
District 3	27.4%
District 7	20.1%
District 14	12.2%
District 20	5.1%

Thus, it is apparent that the 2002 Plan will give Marion County little chance of electing a Marion County resident to look out for its local interests in the Florida Senate. Marion County has not had a resident Senator for the last twenty years, and will not have one for the next ten years under the 2002 Plan, in spite of its enormous past and projected growth. The 2002 Plan deprives Marion County of any realistic likelihood of a meaningful voice in the State Senate to represent its political community of interest.

Splitting Marion County among four senatorial districts thwarts the desires of Marion County residents for political cohesion and a meaningful, unified political voice in the state Senate. This desire was expressed in Resolution 02-R-27 of the Board of County Commissioners of Marion County:

WHEREAS, Marion County is currently represented by four Senators, none of whom reside in Marion County; and

WHEREAS, Marion County has a population of nearly 265,000 and clearly deserves at least one resident Senator; and

WHEREAS, Marion County has been one of the fastest growing areas in the nation over the last 20 years and is expected to grow an additional 20% by 2010; and

WHEREAS, Marion County's population is 40% to 200% larger than surrounding counties but those surrounding counties have resident Senators; and

WHEREAS, Marion County is geographically the fifth largest county in Florida; and

WHEREAS, Marion County is "one community of interest" with unique environmental, economical and sociological issues, which are concerns shared by all of its citizens and a common desire to resolve those issues.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Board of County Commissioners of Marion County, Florida, does hereby resolve that it is in the best interest of Marion County and all of its citizens to have at least one resident Senator and urges the Legislature of the State of Florida to provide for this occurrence in the current reapportionment process.

[A 3 (expressions of community of interest).] The Cities of Ocala, Dunnellon, and Belleview, and the executive committees of both the Republican and Democrat parties in Marion County, among many other civic and community leaders, strongly urged the Legislature to recognize and respect its community of interest as a political subdivision [A 3], and testified to that effect at public hearings. [A 5.] Their efforts were unavailing despite the bounty of evidence supporting them.

Marion County lies in the central highlands region of the Florida Peninsula, midway between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean, south of Gainesville and northwest of Orlando. [See map at A 1.] Marion County encompasses 1,663 square miles, making it the fifth largest Florida county geographically. The County is perhaps best known for its beautiful gently rolling countryside, which is home to extensive and world-renowned horse farms. Farming consumes nearly 24% of Marion County's acreage. [A 2 (demographics).] The agricultural industry, and particularly horse farming, is one of Marion County's biggest and most economically significant industries, and presents unique environmental, regulatory, and financial concerns. Horse farming is important to the state as a whole, and its central concentration in Marion County presents unique issues deserving of a protective voice in the state Senate.

Marion County's natural resources likewise set it apart as a community deserving of a dedicated political voice. [A 2.] Much of the eastern third of Marion County lies within the Ocala National Forest. In fact, approximately one-third of Marion County's total acreage is either a state or federal recreation site. Marion County is also privileged to be home to three of the state's First Magnitude Springs: Silver Springs, Rainbow Springs, and Silver Glen Springs. Together, these springs discharge significantly more water than springs located in any adjacent county. Marion County residents withdraw a larger amount of fresh water for domestic self-supplied purposes (private wells) than any other county in the entire state. [A 2.] The presence of these unique natural resources in Marion County creates additional unique environmental and regulatory concerns common to the county's voters.

Marion County's current population, according to the 2000 decennial census, is 258,916. [A 2 (composite exhibit of demographics).] This makes Marion County the seventeenth largest Florida county in terms of population, and represents growth since the 1990 decennial census of nearly 33%. Of the registered voters in Marion County, nearly equal numbers are Republican and Democrat: 62,961 Republican and 61,556 Democrat. Marion County is home to 63,488 people age 65 and over, making it the state's fifteenth largest county in terms of senior population. At the same time, Marion County has the state's fifteenth-largest school-age population and seventeenth-largest public school district. Marion County's population far exceeds that of its neighboring counties and far exceeds the populations of all but two of the counties with which it shares senate districts.

Most of Marion County is unincorporated, but it encompasses five incorporated municipalities: Ocala, Belleview, Dunnellon, Reddick, and McIntosh. Ocala is by far the largest municipality in Marion County, with a population of 45,943. One would think that perhaps the voting power of a city the size of Ocala would give this part of Marion County an opportunity to elect a Senator of its choice. Not so, however, because the 2002 Plan divides Ocala among three state Senate districts. [A 1.] More Marion County voters are in District 3 than in the county's other three districts (27.4%), but again, their voting power is nullified by the size and scope of that district, which extends all the way north to Georgia, east to Duval County, and west through Jefferson County. Significantly, Senate District 3 also has a "finger" jutting into Leon County to capture parts of Tallahassee, over 180 miles away from Ocala by road. The jutting "finger" of District 3 takes in 36,611 Tallahassee/Leon County voters [A 4 (District by County statistics)], effectively negating the voting power of the part of Ocala in District 3.

Compared to its neighboring counties, which have resident Senators or a meaningful opportunity to influence the outcome of a Senate race, Marion County leads in population, growth in population, land area, number of eligible voters, number of households, school-age population, state taxes collected, and personal income. [A 2 (last chart).] Marion County and Ocala present these considerations in support of their request that the Court invalidate the 2002 Plan as it affects Marion County, and afford the Florida Legislature the opportunity to redraw that aspect of the plan to give Marion County a meaningful opportunity to elect a resident Senator, failing which Legislative redrawing the Court itself should do so.

SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

Community of interest in the form of political subdivisions has long been recognized as a valid consideration in redistricting, and one that should be respected when it is possible to do so without creating a discriminatory impact in affected areas. Particularly in a case such as this where the challenged aspect of redistricting does not impact on racial, ethnic, or language concerns, no rational reason exists to divide Marion County among four Senate districts in which the County's voters have no significant influence. Further, no rational reason for such a division exists where there remains significant statistical leeway to create districts better reflecting communities of interest without exceeding or even approaching the ten percent deviation threshold that courts have long considered acceptable. Because of the demonstrable benefit to Marion County and the lack of prejudice to surrounding areas, the Court should reject the 2002 Plan as it relates to Marion County and order the Florida Legislature to redraw this aspect of the plan to respect Marion County's community of interest and give it a meaningful opportunity to elect a resident Senator.

The sole criterion upon which the 2002 Plan based its division of Marion County into four senatorial districts was numerical equality of population. Thus, the 2002 Plan treats Marion County as a population borrow pit, over which the Legislature moved lines here and there to make its population numbers work in four separate districts, without regard to the identity of Marion County as a political subdivision representing an identifiable community of interests. Marion County voters do not comprise a majority or even a significant minority of any one of the four districts. This division of Marion County's voters was not necessary to avoid a discriminatory impact in Marion County or any surrounding area, nor was it necessary to create in any particular district a constituency fairly reflective of that district's population. This division of Marion County into four parts was not necessary to achieve a legally valid numerical population deviation in the affected Senate districts. It was, in short, irrational. It was simply more convenient for the Legislature to subordinate Marion County's community of interests to an overly zealous quest for mathematical nicety, than to respect Marion County's community of interest and give it the opportunity to elect a resident Senator. The 2002 Plan is invalid in this regard and should be redrawn.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

The Florida Constitution requires this Court to determine whether or not the 2002 Plan is "valid" in light of the constitutional mandate that the Legislature apportion the state "in accordance with the constitution of the state and of the United States." Art. III, § 16(a), Fla. Const. In this original proceeding the standard of review is de novo as to the plan's compliance with constitutional requirements.

See In re Apportionment Law, 414 So. 2d 1040 (Fla. 1982).

ARGUMENT

PRESERVING MARION COUNTY'S POLITICAL VOICE AS A SUBDIVISION OF THE STATE SHOULD TAKE PRIORITY OVER THE PURSUIT OF NEAR-PERFECT MATHEMATICAL EQUALITY OF POPULATION.

In addition to certain explicit constitutional and statutory requirements, the redistricting process is also governed by certain longstanding jurisprudential considerations. The United States Supreme Court has stated quite clearly that "mathematical nicety is not a constitutional requisite." Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 569 (1964). The Supreme Court has specified that preservation of political subdivisions is a clearly legitimate policy in apportionment cases:

To the extent that a citizen's right to vote is debased, he is that much less a citizen. The fact that an individual lives here or there is not a legitimate reason for overweighting or diluting the efficacy of his vote. ... The Equal Protection Clause demands no less than substantially equal state legislative representation for all citizens, of all places as well as of all races.

377 U.S. at 568 (emphasis added). After recognizing the importance of preserving the weight of each citizen's vote, and the legitimacy of political subdivisions as a means of ensuring equal representation, the Court criticized districting that did not respect political subdivision boundaries: "Indiscriminate districting, without any regard for political subdivision or natural or historical boundary lines, may be little more than an open invitation to partisan gerrymandering." Id. at 578. Rather than ignoring political subdivision lines, the Court encouraged respect for them:

A consideration that appears to be of more substance in justifying some deviations from population-based representation in state legislatures is that of insuring some voice to political subdivisions, as political subdivisions.

Id. at 580. This Court has also noted that maintaining the integrity of the state's political subdivisions is a legitimate concern in redistricting. In re Constitutionality of Senate Joint Resolution 2G, 597 So. 2d 276, 285 n.14 (Fla. 1992).

The United States Supreme Court also has held that, given the choice between numerical equality among districts and respect for political subdivisions' voices, the latter may justify a departure from the former: "a desire to preserve the integrity of political subdivisions may justify an apportionment plan which departs from numerical equality." Abate v. Mundt, 403 U.S. 182, 185 (1971). In Brown v. Thomson, 462 U.S. 835 (1983), the Supreme Court again made it clear that the goal of achieving population equality among districts is not paramount:

We have recognized that some deviations from population equality may be necessary to permit the States to pursue other legitimate objectives such as 'maintain[ing] the integrity of various political subdivisions' and 'provid[ing] for compact districts of contiguous territory. ... As the Court stated in Gaffney [v. Cummings, 412 U.S. 735, 749 (1973)], '[a]n unrealistic overemphasis on raw population figures, a mere nose count in the districts, may submerge these other considerations and itself furnish a ready tool for ignoring factors that in day-to-day operation are important to an acceptable representation and apportionment arrangement.'

Brown, 462 U.S. at 842. In Brown, the Supreme Court upheld a Wyoming apportionment plan that allocated at least one House of Representatives seat to each and every county, even the least populous county having less than half the "ideal" average population, and even though the result was a deviation averaging 16% from exact population equality. 462 U.S. at 838. In protecting the smallest county's right to have a resident representative, the Wyoming Legislature found that "the opportunity for oppression of the people of this state or any of them is greater if any county is deprived a representative in the legislature than if each is guaranteed at least one (1) representative." Id. at 840. The Supreme Court upon review agreed with these "substantial and legitimate state concerns," upholding the apportionment plan in its respect for county lines. Id. at 843.

The Supreme Court has expressly disapproved splitting up political subdivisions in a manner that deprives them of their respective political voices. In Mahan v. Howell, 410 U.S. 315 (1973), the Court upheld a judicially re-drawn Virginia apportionment plan because, in pertinent part, the plan originally devised by the General Assembly had divided Scott County voters into two separate districts, and Virginia Beach voters into two other districts, leaving all of the affected voters without a majority vote in any of the districts. 410 U.S. at 323-24. This is precisely the problem with Florida's 2002 Plan as it affects Marion County, dividing it among four separate Senate districts without giving Marion County voters a statistical majority in any of the four districts. The problem is exacerbated by the plan's division of Ocala, Marion County's largest municipality, into three separate districts. These divisions irrationally dilute Marion County's vote.

Faced with a similar flaw, the Supreme Court in Mahan rejected Virginia's General Assemby apportionment plan, noting that the plan rendered Scott County voters' "opportunity ... to champion local legislation ... virtually nil," and "effectively disenfranchised" Virginia Beach voters relegated to numerical minority status in an adjoining district. Id. at 324. This disenfranchisement of voters by relegating them to numerical minority status affects voters of every race and political party. An analogy to the problem of racially discriminatory districting is instructive in identifying and avoiding this problem. In the case of racial discrimination, courts have recognized that merely insuring that individual members of a minority class have the right to vote is not enough. To protect the efficacy of their right to vote, their voting districts must be drawn so as to give them a meaningful opportunity to elect their preferred candidates. While Marion County residents, as a whole, do not have the same legal status as minorities, they do have a right to votes not so diluted as to thwart any realistic opportunity to elect their own Senator. This important principle of protecting against vote dilution was a significant factor in the Supreme Court's approval of Virginia's districts only after they had been judicially redrawn. Mahan, 410 U.S. at 324.

In upholding Virginia's districts as they were judicially redrawn, the Supreme Court relied upon its own precedents for the reasoning that "Local governmental entities are frequently charged with various responsibilities incident to the operation of state government." Id. at 321 (citing Reynolds, 377 U.S. at 580-81). See also In re Reapportionment, 2002 WL 100555 (Colo. Jan. 28, 2002) (invalidating reapportionment plan that crossed county lines and thus violated state constitutional preference for intact counties whenever possible to maintain five percent or lower level of numeric population deviation).

The Attorney General in his brief to this Court recognizes both the validity of respecting political subdivision boundaries per se, and the utility of such respect in defeating claims of improper racial gerrymandering. [AG Br. 13.] As the Attorney General notes, the Supreme Court looks to "traditional districting principles such as compactness, contiguity, and respect for political subdivisions" to weigh the validity of districting choices. Id. at 13-14 (quoting from Shaw v. Reno, 509 U.S. 630, 647 (1993)). See also Miller v. Johnson, 515 U.S. 900, 901 (1995) ("traditional race-neutral districting principles" can defeat claim of racial gerrymandering). The Attorney General further notes that public input during the redistricting process often specified a strong public preference for respecting political subdivision lines. [AG Br. 17-18.] The Attorney General criticizes the 2002 Plan in part for its excessive distance between portions of Senate District 27 between Palm Beach County and Lee County [AG Br. 28], a distance far less than the reach of District 3 from Ocala in Marion County to Tallahassee in Leon County. The Attorney General cannot reconcile traditional districting principles with the 2002 Plan, and urges the Court to reject the 2002 Plan and require the Legislature to articulate consistent standards for redistricting decisions, specifically including "compactness, communities of interest, [and] respecting municipal and county boundaries." [AG Br. 27-28.] Marion County agrees.

These authorities make the unassailable point that respect for political subdivision boundaries is not only a legitimate factor in state districting, but that it must take precedence over strict numerical equality among districts when necessary to protect and preserve the voting voice of the citizens of each political subdivision. In this case, however, the 2002 Plan elevates numerical equality over the political voice of Marion County's voters. This slavish adherence to numbers in total disregard for political subdivision boundaries — evident not only from the division of Marion County among four Senate districts but further emphasized by the division of Ocala into three districts — cannot withstand scrutiny. Perhaps this phenomenon is the result of the ready availability of sophisticated computer technology, which makes near-perfect numerical equality fairly easy to achieve with the proverbial push of a button. Perhaps it is simply the result of predictable partisan gerrymandering intended to protect incumbents. Whatever the reason for it, the Florida Legislature's slavish devotion to numerical accuracy at the expense of Marion County's political voice is contrary to governing principles of constitutional fairness and equality, and should not be allowed to stand. The Court should reject the 2002 Plan as it affects Marion County, and afford the Legislature the opportunity to redraw the Plan to address this consideration.

It can scarcely be gainsaid that Marion County is significant and unique in many respects, and that other counties with fewer such factors in their favor have long had resident Senators while Marion County has not. To summarize but a few factors about Marion County; it is among the state's largest counties in terms of both geography and population; it has significant populations of both senior citizens and families with school-age children; it is home to the vast majority of the state's significant horse farming industry and other major agricultural activities; and it encompasses significant and unique natural resources such as the Ocala National Forest and three First Magnitude Springs. Its political and civic leaders have put aside partisan politics to speak with a single voice in support of the effort to obtain a resident Senator to reflect fairly Marion County's unique local concerns. The legislature's decision to reject these factors and split Marion County's voters into four separate districts, not having majority influence in any of the four, runs afoul of the Equal Protection Clause.

The Legislature's apparent desire to achieve near-perfect population equality among the districts was improperly elevated over Marion County's right to a meaningful political voice in the state Senate. It was not necessary to do so. Although certainly redistricting must honor the Fourteenth Amendment's requirement of one person, one vote, the law allows far greater statistical deviation than the 2002 Plan achieved, considering deviations of 10% or less so minor as not to even raise a constitutional question. Brown v. Thomson, 462 U.S. at 842. What the Legislature did to Marion County was utterly unnecessary to achieving a legally valid population density in the affected districts. Cf. In re Apportionment Law, 414 So. 2d 1040, 1045 (Fla. 1982) (noting that 1982 reapportionment plan had maintained the integrity of 44 of Florida's 67 counties, and split counties only where necessary "principally because population was greater than the ideal number of people per district," achieving a deviation more than three times greater than that achieved under the 2002 Plan). In a similar vein, there was no showing during the reapportionment process, and the evidence does not support a finding, that dividing Marion County among four senatorial districts was necessary to protect minority voting strength in the county or in surrounding areas. Cf. In re Constitutionality of Senate Joint Resolution 2G, 597 So. 2d at 285 n.14 (allowing plan to split small cities into two districts because it was "an inevitable result of the legal requirements to draw district lines in such a manner as to provide significant minority voting strength"). Simply put, the Legislature had no good reason — no legally acceptable reason — to split Marion County into four state senatorial districts in a fashion that deprives Marion County voters of a resident Senator and any meaningful opportunity to influence the outcome of the Senate races in any of the four districts.

CONCLUSION

Marion County is the only county in the state divided into four Senatorial districts in which the county's voters do not have a majority vote in any one of the districts. Marion County and the City of Ocala urge the Court to reject the 2002 Plan as it relates to Marion County, and require the Legislature to redraw the plan to keep Marion County whole, thus affording its residents the opportunity to elect a resident Senator or a position of majority influence in at least one Senate district.

Marion County, with a current population of nearly 265,000, is expected to grow an additional 20% by 2010. Marion County's population, based on the 2000 census is greater that any of the adjacent Counties where a significant boundary is shared (Alachua, Citrus, Lake, Levy, Putnam and Sumter). Marion County's population, based on the 2000 census, accounts for approximately 27% of the total population in the seven County area.

Marion County has within its boundaries 3 First Magnitude Springs. First Magnitude Springs are springs with discharge of 100 cubic fee per second (cfs) or more. Marion County's 3 First Magnitude Springs are Silver Springs, Rainbow Springs and Silver Glen Springs. The combined total of all of the average discharge (cfs) from First Magnitude Springs in Alachua, Citrus, Lake, Levy, Putnam and Sumter is 2083 cfs.

Chairman and Committee Members Reapportionment Committees

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen:

I recognize that this is only one of many letters that have been written to you in addition to various resolutions pleading that in the reapportionment process Marion County will be once again after many years in the position to have a State Senator who is a resident of Marion County.

The purpose for this request is that Marion County is a community of interests with unusual environmental, economical and sociological issues which are a concern by all of our residents.

Respectfully yours,

HARVEY KLEIN

The Florida Senate 404 South Monroe Street Tallahassee, FL, 32399-1100

Dear Honorable Senators:

We speak for over sixty thousand Democrats in Marion County when we ask to have a voice in Tallahassee from our own community.

Marion County continues to grow and grow; yet for one of Florida's fifteen most populous counties, the proposed plan leaves our residents with little or no chance to elect a Marion Countian to the state Senate, giving in to interests in several smaller counties whose needs will be different than ours.

With issues such as protection of our water supply, the Rodman Reservoir, the equine industry, growth, and healthcare, Marion County's issues are as individual as the Senator that should speak to them in Tallahassee. We must not have our needs divided up among three or four senators who will place a higher priority on a larger block of voters.

On behalf our of committee, we strongly object to the current plan and ask that lines be re-drawn to provide Marion County with a voice in the State Senate.

Thank you,

Kenneth R. Nadeau, County Chairman

Dear Honorable Senators:

Many problems facing Marion County today are problems unique to this county. Whether it's conserving our water resources, administering to our diversified agricultural community or working with State and Federal Agencies with their vast land holdings and projects. These problems can best be addressed by someone who lives in Marion County.

Therefore, I respectfully ask the Florida Legislature to consider providing for at least one resident Senator in the current reapportionment process.

As the Marion County Tax Collector, I strongly support the effort to provide for one resident Senator for Marion County. Our geographic location, importance to the horse industry and our growth seems to merit representation from a person who lives here.

Presently, we are represented by four Senators who live in smaller, distant counties. I respectfully ask the Florida Legislature to consider a reapportionment, which would allow for "local" representation.

Dear Honorable Senators of the State of Florida:

I, Paul Anderson, Mayor of City of Belleview, Marion County, Florida, recommend that it would be in the best interest to the citizens of Marion County to have at least one resident senator. As it stands now, none of the present senators actually reside in Marion County.

I am sure you are aware that Marion County is growing at a rapid rate and is the fifth largest county in Florida. It seems not only advisable but also practical to have a resident senator for such a large populated area that will only continue to grow.

I urge the Legislature of the State of Florida to consider our request to have a resident senator in Marion County when discussions are held on the reapportionment process.

The Honorable Senators of the State of Florida The Florida Senate 404 South Monroe Street Tallahassee, FL 32399-1100

Dear Honorable Senators of the State of Florida:

Marion County, Florida, has been one of the fastest growing areas in our nation over the past 20 years and is expected to see its current population of 265,000 increase by 20% by the end of this decade. At the present time Marion County is represented by four Senators, none of whom reside within the county. This is particularly perplexing given that the population of Marion County is at least 40% larger than surrounding counties who have resident Senators.

Munroe Regional Health System and the citizens of Marion County have a common desire that we be represented by at least one resident Senator. We ask that in your Senate re-districting process during this legislative session the errors in this process by the Senate 10 years ago not be repeated; that population, as a driving factor in designing legislative districts, not be ignored this time as it was then. We believe it is in the best interest of the Health System and of Marion County as "one community of interest" with unique environmental, economic and sociological issues shared by all of our citizens, that our citizens be represented by at least one resident Senator so that this community of interest can be kept whole.

We urge the Senate of the State of Florida to deal fairly and responsibly with Marion County during your deliberations during this 2002 reapportionment process. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Room 216, Senate Office Building

Chairman Laurent and members:

The Ocala/Marion County Economic Development Council is deeply interested in the issue recently raised by Randy Harris, our County Commission Chairman. In his letter of January 30, 2002, Commissioner Harris wrote about Marion County's need and desire to have a resident Senator.

As the agency responsible for promoting Marion County for economic growth and vitality we certainly understand the desirability of having one our County's residents in a position to speak for the whole county. Currently Marion County is divided into three separate districts, each encompassing a small piece of Marion County and a section of one or more neighboring counties. Commissioner Harris, as well as his fellow commissioners, is charged with the task of providing leadership and vision to the residents of Marion County. To do so they must have support from the State's legislative bodies. An important part of that support comes from having a resident Senator responsible to the people of Marion County.

The existing apportionment causes Marion County's citizens to suffer from a lack of representation as it does citizens of those adjoining counties that currently share their Senator. With a 2000 Census of more than a quarter million people, (258,916) Marion County would seem to stand as a central location of representative redistricting rather than the out-skirts of some other area.

We hope you will consider Commissioner Harris' letter as well as ours when redistricting is considered.

Dear Chairperson and Committee Members:

On behalf of the 350 member firms of the Marion County Builders Association, we encourage you to use "common sense" and not "politics" in the Senate redistricting of Marion County.

It seems the Senate Redistricting Committee does not have the best interest, or any interest, in providing true representation for our County. Marion County is one of the fasting growing areas not only in Florida, but our nation. How do you justify that the fifth largest county in Florida with a population of 265,000 citizens, has no resident Senate representation?

Please reconsider and be fair in your decision. All that we ask is that we be treated fairly and equitably. The proposed Senate District Map for Marion County is unacceptable and if adopted most likely will end up in the judicial system for intervention. Lets save the taxpayer's dollar and do what is right!

Thank you for your time and consideration. The Marion County Builders Association looks forward to your response.

Honorable Senators and Representatives The Florida Legislature 404 South Monroe St. Tallahassee. Fl. 32399-1100

Dear Senators and Representatives:

Marion County has both the geographic and population size to deserve to rank high on the list of counties that should have resident representation. Additionally, of Marion County's population of nearly 265,000 citizens, nearly 32% are seniors—above the state average of 23% and well above the percentages of most of our surrounding Senate district counties. Such demographics truly define a unique "community of interest" in Marion County that deserves to be recognized with local representation.

Please consider the demographics of such a large constituency in your redistricting effort and create Senate district lines that will allow for a residential Senator from Marion County who can fully appreciate the interests of our citizens, including seniors, and represent those interests in the Legislature.

Dear Chairperson and Committee Members,

On February 11,2002, the Marion County Farm Bureau Board of Directors, representing over 4,200 members in Marion County, voted unanimously to support the efforts of the Republican and Democratic parties of Marion County and the Marion County commission to have a Senate seat for Marion County.

Under the present plan, Marion County has four senators and eight house members representing our citizens. District 24, currently held by Dennis Baxley, is the only seat which is represented by a resident of Marion County. Under the present plan only Dennis Baxley knows our needs for Marion County as he lives here and knows his constituency. Marion County should not be fragmented like we are.

Over 260,000 people live in our county with many rural and urban problems that need a resident senate seat representing Marion County in Tallahassee.

Marion County Farm Bureau believes we have not been treated fairly in the past and recommends that in the new districting plan we should have a senate district for Marion County with a resident senator living and representing our citizens in Tallahassee.

Respectfully Submitted

The Honorable Senators of the State of Florida The Florida Senate 404 South Monroe Street Tallahassee, FL 32399-1100

Dear Senators:

I feel it is in the best interest of Marion County to have at least one resident Senator. Currently four Senators, none of whom live in Marion County, represent this county.

With a population of approximately 265,000 and one of the fastest growing areas in the nation, Marion County is deserving of a resident Senator in Tallahassee. The population of Marion County is at lest 40 percent larger than surrounding counties who have resident Senators. In addition, Marion County is expected to grow an additional 20 percent by 2010 and is geographically the fifth largest county in Florida.

I encourage you to ensure at least one resident Senator for Marion County as you deliberate on reapportionment.

Sincerely,

Stephen W. Mahan Chief Executive Officer

Central Florida Community College

Office of the President

The Honorable Senators of the State of Florida The Florida Senate 404 South Monroe Street Tallahassee FL 32399-1100

Dear Honorable Senators of the State of Florida:

While the four Senators who have part of their district in Marion County do their best to represent the county, we have no Senator whose primary concern is for Marion County. Marion County has grown dramatically during the past decade, and will continue to do so.

On behalf of Central Florida Community College, I encourage you to redistrict the State in a way that provides at least one resident Senator for Marion County. Thank you for considering this request.

Sincerely,

Charles R. Dassance

Mr. Randy Harris Marion County Commission 601 SE 25th Avenue Ocala, Florida 34471

Subject: Marion County Reapportionment

Dear Commissioner Harris:

The Ocala/Marion County Chamber of Commerce appreciates and acknowledges the efforts and work of our delegation in meeting a wide variety of interests from such a large population. We thank them for their diligence in meeting the many needs of our area.

As our community grows, the strain on our delegates increases. The Ocala/Marion County Chamber of Commerce has expressed concern for the allocation of representatives and senators to the Florida Legislature. To facilitate and assist our delegation, the Chamber has expressed the need for a majority of the constituent base of our representatives be from Marion County. Such an allocation will allow for a stronger Marion County voice in the positions offered by these representatives.

With a growing population approaching 300,000, it appears to be prudent and apparent that Marion County is qualified as its own Senatorial District. Our community is a dynamic and growing area in citizen residency and economic development. We do not expect this trend to be reduced in the near future.

The Ocala/Marion County Chamber of Commerce has shared this position with our delegates at community and reapportionment meetings. As always, the Chamber is here to assist the positive development of the Marion County community.

Sincerely,

Michael D. Malone

President

And I'm putting those out there for the members' benefit -- how about going and back out -- and would ask for some input from the committee and see -- get your comments on the -- what we've done to date and if there is any questions. I'd be glad to answer any questions.

Okay. Are there any members from -- we have some public input. First is Bill Jones, League of Women Voters of Florida.

MR. JONES: When producers of films are looking for directors, directors are thinking about three things they shouldn't do. One would be work with special effects. The other working with animals or working with children, mistakes that could happen. In the third house they advised me that one of the things you shouldn't do is get involved in redistricting. But having done that for 30 years ago as a volunteer in drawing by hand maps, and ten years ago all the way through the court process. I guess I haven't learned my lesson.

In kind of the comments here, what I wanted to do was, and this being a working product, we have -- and of course many of you know our plans that the League of Women Voters and Common Cause have prepared are on your web site and we CHAIRMAN LAURENT: I think we have a quorum. Will the Senate Reapportionment Subcommittee on Legislative Apportionment and Redistricting please come to order. Administrative assistant, please call the roll.

(Whereupon, the roll was called.)

CHAIRMAN LAURENT: Members, you can look up on the screen. Since the last time we met, we asked for input at the last meeting and since the last meeting I've had an immense amount of input from folks in the Senate on maps. Some of the input we've not been able to get into the proposed maps that had to be filed by Tuesday evening.

These were two options that we had come up with. The maps are pretty much identical except for the — for want of a better word is the Palm Beach sear, the area in south Florida. If you look at the map on the left which is 006, the major difference there, there is a coastal seat in Lee and Collier counties and then there is the interior part of Lee County, Collier County, Hendry Collier, and the interior part of Palm Beach County come together for a seat.

That seat, the largest county in that district is Palm Beach. It does not have an absolute majority in the district. Look to the right which is 005, that is a district which has a — Palm Beach County, Hendry County.

thank you for that. These products were put out so that you had another perspective of how to draw redistricting plans according to various standards. And some of the standards we used was to try and hold as much as we could in the majority/minority districts intact and believing the same. I think, legal strategy that the Senate has used in preparing its House. Senate, and Congressional plans.

That may be where the similarities end and the differences start. If you look at your plans and knowing that ten years ago also there was a Senate produced plan that was at zero deviation as well and the remaining zero deviation plans that went to the courts, even though by law you've been instructed that there is certain deviation that's allowed within those districts, we would ask you to think about why those deviations are occurring in each of the districts, the reasons for that. Whether you are trying to keep a percentage in a majority/minority district.

For example, if you took our map, adjusted the change for majority/minority I might have, and Senator Holzendorf illustrated to me. Well, you didn't quite hit the same percentage I had in my district last time, a reason to deviate from a zero deviation plan that would be a good reason, trying to reach a legal principle or a principle of compactness where you kept county boundaries together or intact in trying to reach that would be another good standard.

The Legislature, ten years ago, adopted standards as they drew these maps, standards that you could apply to why things were being drawn the way that they were being drawn. If you look at this map compared to the map that was drawn by our volunteers and the staff, blindly of course to the districts and the party and that information, you'll see that many of the districts are much more compact. You do not see some of the strange configurations that are there.

So we would encourage you as a body, as you proceed through this process, probably the fastest way into a court would be because you are deviating from zero deviation and do not have standards or reasons for that deviation or haven't stated those publicly.

We'd also state given this, you've got -- I see trying to meet some communities of interest like beach communities and other things. And then in other parts of the state, it looks like you were trying to achieve compactness. So that, again, the standards don't seem to apply throughout the state of what you were trying to achieve. But beyond that, towards your working product, we encourage you, we're not trying to pin any member to file our plan as such, as an amendment to yours or any of those kinds of things. They are out there, again, for your perspective to help you

These recommendations went on to our county commission and our county commission adopted a resolution which I understand has been distributed before you and have identified some of the issues that affect the citizens of Nassau County.

Nassau County is a fast-growth small county. The complexion of Nassau County is changing rapidly and what used to be a very agricultural west side is, in fact, fast becoming a residential commercial area. There is already several major developments proposed for west Nassau that would then again take our community towards a more residential-intensive pattern of growth over the next ten years.

The numbers of permits, the growth, the expansion of our commercial interest throughout the county cannot be ignored. The Nassau County Board of County Commissioners has adopted a resolution that in essence requests that this body consider single-member representation as a guiding principle for redistricting for the citizens of the county.

Single member representation has served us well in the last ten years and our concern is by dividing the county between east and west will further divide the county among the issues that divide those populations.

We believe that single-member representation is the one item lacking in the current proposed plan. And whether through what it could look like using compactness,

2 contiguality, zero deviation for those individual plans.

That's it, Mr. Chairman.

SENATOR LAURENT: Any questions? Any questions? Yes, Senator King.

SENATOR KING: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I know this is of only marginal interest to you and I can appreciate that, but do I have a district in your drawing?

THE WITNESS: I don't know where you live, Senator.

SENATOR KING: Well, that's fairly obvious.

(Laughter.) That's fairly obvious. Because it looks like unless I move to Georgia, I'm in deep sushi here.

MR. JONES: Believe me, the individual we had working on this plan has no idea where any of you are living or any of your personalities. So don't take it personally.

(Laughter.)

SENATOR LAURENT: Did you furnish a copy - do we have a copy of the plan? It's on the web but not in the packet, okay? Thank you very much.

20 Doug Adkins from the Nassau County GOP.

MR. ADKINS: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Chairman Adams

sends his regards to the committee members and the Nassau 22

County Republican Executive Committee would like to applaud

24 the Chairman's efforts to meet some of the objectives that the Nassau County REC had adopted several months ago.

it's Senate District 8, Senator King or Senator Wise, I 2 think the county would be pleased with either Senator and certainly, you know, whichever Senator could best represent 4 us is the one that we would want.

But the commissioners and the -- as well as the GOP leadership asked me to come today to bring this issue to vour attention and to request your assistance in correcting this because Nassau County in northeast Florida quite frankly is the only legislative body, the elected legislative body, that has taken a position on this issue and has said. This is what we would like to see happen.

We had an ad hoc committee established that met from February to December, held public hearings, gathered input, listened to the local citizens. We went through a very thoughtful process, a large group of people. And I guess we just want to be heard. We just want to make sure that this well thought out approach to how we are represented in the Florida Senate is given consideration and would carry some weight.

So we would ask you to consider making that change, Mr. Chairman, and members of the committee, and we would again strongly applaud your efforts to meet our other objectives which included affiliation with the Duval delegation and we also had other objectives that included -- that we be allowed to -- that we be allowed to have single-member representation in Nassau County. Thank you. SENATOR LAURENT: Thank you very much. Are there any questions? Thank you very much. The next speaker is Kurt Keller - excuse me, from Marion County. MR. KELLY: Ouite the dramatic entrance with the cane and the limp. I was out playing football with my kids at Christmastime, stepped in a hole and blew out both knees. When you hit 42, you don't need to act like Deion Sanders I'm a member of the Marion County school board and I want to thank you for the opportunity to come to speak to you. Tonight I want to talk about the impact of these maps that we currently see as well as our concerns. On behalf of the Marion County school board, the superintendent of schools, Jim Warford, the nearly 5200 employees, the 40,000 students, and nearly 300,000 residents of Marion County, we have taken serious the charge of this legislative body, the Governor, the House, the Senate, we have taken the charge in raising student performance. In fact, Marion County has committed to, by

Marion County is the fifth largest geographical area in Florida - county. Our community interest extends from the year 2005 to be the leader in raising student

community leader and a member of Marion County school board. I urge you to establish a Senate seat that best represents Marion County's community interest.

I thank you. We have passed a resolution from the school board. It is signed by our chairman, Ron Crawford, our superintendent of school. Jim Warford, school board member Cheryl Appelquist, Steve Hering, Kurt Kelly, and Kathie Rushlow. And I know that the Marion County and this community is very concerned about this. We know you've got a major task before you but we would appreciate it if you would look at us and say, This county is growing and it's time for us, once again, to have someone join this body from Marion County. Thank you.

MR. CHURCHHILL: Thank you very much. Are there any questions? Okay. If you'll leave that ~ did you want to leave the resolution?

MR. KELLY: I'll have it -

SENATOR LAURENT: Thank you very much. Randy Harris.

He's from the Marion County Commission.

MR, HARRIS: Thank you for the opportunity to come and share some of our concerns. I wear two hats. I come as chairman of the Marion County commission. I have served as a county commissioner for about seven and a half years. I also wear the hat of chairman of the Republican executive committee. But virtually everyone in Marion County is

Dunnellon in the southwest, to Wacahoota in the northwest, to Hog Valley and Fort McCoy in the northeast. I can give you some more names if you'd like them, Wiersdale in the southeast. We include some of the fastest-growing areas in the state.

We transport nearly 30,000 students on our buses a day and we cover nearly 50,000 miles a day to do that.

Transportation concerns are major for us. While Marion County is dramatically larger than its contiguous neighbors, less Volusia County, it is currently divided into four Senate seats. And we see on these maps we have today that it's divided into three Senate seats.

Each of these pieces are incongruent and inconsistent with our general community interest. Marion County has not had a resident Senator that represents the majority of our county in over 20 years. And quite frankly, in that period of time, while we've had representatives who have done a fine job for us and we could go to them, we have not had someone in this great emerging county that would be our advocate here in Tallahassee.

We are thankful to those Senators who have representatives and we recognize the need for the primary resident advocate. We need those -- that advocate to help us achieve this goal and that is raising student standard -- or student performance. Therefore, as a concerned with what has existed in Marion County for many, many years.

We have a 12-member legislative delegation. That fact has been shared with other counties as this discussion and meetings have gone on about reapportionment and it has been sold to other counties as the greatest thing since sliced bread. Look at all the wonderful representation that Marion County has. And I'm not suggesting for a moment that we don't have wonderful Senators and Representatives because we do. Many of which have worked with us very closely on some of our issues.

However, as my good friend from the school board noted, it is difficult to have adequate representation when our legislative delegation members are so terribly handicapped because they live in other areas. You see, in Marion County we have, for the most part, long-distance representation. We have for the most part absentee representation, if you will. It's almost easier for me to come to Tailahassee to see my Representatives, my Senators than it is to try to find them in their resident counties. Very difficult to do.

We have major concerns with what has existed in the past and even what we have seen with the most recent maps the Senate is proffering. We have approximately 265,000 residents. We'll be at 300,000 residents very soon. What that really means is we have a 40 percent greater population than all of those contiguous counties which have resident Senators.

I

In the infinite wisdom of some years ago, Marion County was carved up like a pie. Our population was used to push into other districts. I'm not sure what the wisdom really was, but I'm certain that there was a purpose.

Let me share with you a very recent example of the problem that we wrestle with. As you know, you-all came back for a special session and you wrestled with the issues of insufficient funding. You're going to wrestle with that again. We had — I had actually come up and visited many of you and many other of our legislative delegation members to have discussions prior to your final decisions.

But then after that, we knew that you were going to come back and wrestle with this once again. So I sent a letter out, Please come visit with us before you go back to your regular session. Most of the responses that I received indicated that it was too problematic to get 12 people back together to meet with the Marion County commission, the district that is represented by these 12 people. Too problematic, too many schedules to wrestle with, not enough time to coordinate all of those schedules, and that's understandable. That is a constructive criticism.

I am certain that those delegation members would have to admit that they are far more familiar with the issues that are day-to-day concerns within their resident counties than they are with those concerns of day-to-day issues we wrestle with within Marion County simply because of the location in which they reside, the daily newspapers, the radio shows, the constituency that they are dealing with that can walk in and discuss things with them on a regular basis.

SENATOR LAURENT: Senator King.

SENATOR KING: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I'm one of those Senators that represents a portion of Marion. And I guess it begs the question, and I don't have an answer to it, I know how it played out this last legislative session in projects. And let's face it, a lot of times districts judge how well we represent them by what we've been able to do for the district in terms of projects or schools or treatment for the elderly or whatever. And I believe, if I'm not mistaken, there are five — four Senators that represent Marion now?

MR. HARRIS: Yes.

SENATOR KING: If — what happened last year was each of us was given assurances that if the project was worthy and whatever, we could get one project per county pretty

We only request that this committee consider the dilemma that Marion County experiences and has experienced for many, many years. We recognize in Marion County the difficulty. We only hope that you recognize the difficulty and work with us to ensure that we have, to the greatest extent, an opportunity to have a resident Senator.

We'll continue to work with those of you that are incumbents. We'll go right back and knock on your doors for assistance when we need it. But we certainly desire, if at all possible, a resident Senator. Thank you.

SENATOR LAURENT: Senator Lawson.

SENATOR LAWSON: Sir, earlier you stated that, and I think the school board representative stated, that you-all are very pleased with the representation that you-all receive from both the House and the Senate members but you-all are concerned about the way you-all are split up. Are there issues that affect the county that those Senators and Representatives are not addressing?

MR. HARRIS: Sir, I can tell you that if Marion County travels to our Representatives, we can get them to respond to specific issues we bring to their attention, the benefit as all of you know in residing within the counties that you reside in is you are familiar with the day-to-day issues and concerns of your constituency, that's the handicap that our delegation members have as a result of residing in much without running the risk of automatic veto and it still had to meet the merits.

Now in that situation if you'd had one seated Senator -- and don't have the population to even have that -- so you could have one seated Senator and you could have maybe one other Senator to make up your 400,000 that we have to represent. So if that was the case, you'd have fared far less at least financially than you did with four of us making sure that a major project got included in what we were trying to do for Marion.

Have you-all thought about that? Sometimes I wonder whether in the quest for residency you lose maybe some sight of what actually good is happening to the county that has the multiple representation. I think you had a total, if you have the House and Senate members, what was it, 12?

MR. HARRIS: Yes, sir.

SENATOR KING: You had 12 different people that were fighting the good fight for Marion County on issue after issue. And to be honest with you, you'd have to judge it because you see it as a -- as the whole mosaic. I'm only one of the tiles on that mosaic. But I really thought your county, our county, did fare better than virtually any of the others in the surrounding area or any of the others, other than maybe Dade just because of its population factor. Do you not consider that to be the case or does it make no difference anyway?

MR. HARRIS: Surely I will gest, and you'll understand this, but being the good statesman that all of our legislators in the state are, I'm confident that we would have some equality and balancing in the acceptance or receiving of those projects that you are speaking to.

There is the issue of fairness that I'm confident all of our Legislators attempt to assure when projects are being requested and being awarded. If you'll recall, when the legislative delegation met at Central Florida Community College, I proffered an idea at the time. If you look at those lists, for example, of projects, what we call projects, we'll all realize that state roads are listed on that list of projects. State roads are a responsibility of the state to begin with.

They find their way to a list and sometimes 15 to 20 years later, based on funding, which is the same in all. counties, that isn't a criticism, those projects get done. I wouldn't call those special projects, I would call those maintenance and responsibility of the appropriate entity.

But in the case of projects, there really are very few. I'm not confident that that's the issue at all. Let me give you example. I'm not going to name the particular Senator that came into a meeting with our constituency, it was hosted at the -- and I'm going to come back to CFCC,

That way, there is no joisting, there is no wrestling, there is no dependency on seniority any longer for those, what we'll call special projects, to be funded. Everyone gets their proportionate share. That, of course, would not do away with the donor county issue that we all face for those of us that are large enough to send money and less of it comes back than was sent to Tallahassee. I don't know if that adequately answers your question but -- is that it?

SENATOR LAURENT: Thank you very much.

MR. HARRIS: I also have a resolution from the City of Ocala and the Marion County commission, the city council, the Marion county commission making the same requests that I just entered into the record. Thank you.

SENATOR LAURENT: Thank you. Cheryl Appelquist, Marion County school board.

MS. APPELQUIST: Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. I'm here this evening, again, to share the concern and from the school board, also from our constituents that we were cut up with four Senators and eight House members in the last reapportionment. It makes it very difficult for us to get our message out.

I agree, Senator King, you can understand and carry our wand when necessary. But still, the issue stands. As we look at this map that's drawn and we look over there at the more detailed map, between our two largest high schools

I'm not going to forget that.

We had a specific piece of legislation that was requested from our local constituency. You know in our demographics we have a large segment of retirees and gated communities. That piece of legislation got dropped for whatever reason. Later, it was picked up and there were attempts to get it through and it failed.

That large constituency was very frustrated with their Representative. Because, again, I think that the -- what I'm calling a handicap, not the fault of the Representative perhaps, but because of the location that they reside in and their familiarity on a day-to-day basis with their constituency there, they were at a serious disadvantage and it just slipped their minds. Big problem for those that are looking forward to the fulfillment of a promise that was made.

Back to CFCC and the projects. I suggested at that time that rather than using the archaic system that we have jockeying or joisting for funding for our specific projects within districts, that we fund all of those state responsibilities throughout the budget committees, bring them into the appropriate houses, make your decisions, and then take the balance and then return that back to the constituency from which it was taken on a proportionate basis.

and inner cities of Ocala, we've got three Senators if you look there.

In the city of Ocala, there will be three different Senators representing that city. Is that good? Yes. Do any of them even know that they have cut up the city of Ocala so drastically? I'm not quite sure. Is there a larger city in an entire district? I'm not sure there either.

So I would say, think about what you're doing and please be aware and if there is no one from Ocala, from Marion County sitting on this reapportionment, then possibly you need to call or talk with not only the school board, but the superintendent, the county commission. We really encourage you to have at least one sitting member from our district that is a Senator representing at least a portion of it.

Right now, no one representing Marion County lives in Marion County. We are asking. We've been cut up for the last 20 years. We're asking for a little unity. I thank you for your time and your attention. And I do commend the Senators and Representatives that we do have, but we just want one that lives there and knows the issues. Thank you.

SENATOR LAURENT: Thank you very much. Janet Olin, Leon County supervisor of elections.

MS. OLIN: Hi, I'm Janet Olin. I am the assistant

We have got communities as separate in their interest as Zellwood, which is a historic African-American community which has been an area populated by African-Americans for over a hundred years and areas like Kissimmee, where the Hispanic population growth has taken place in the last five to ten years. So, in that district, we have two very distinct communities which don't have the same interests that need to be represented in their State Senator, and they are at about an equal population balance in the district and we are probably going to have a very, very divisive election between these two ethnic groups.
