

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF FLORIDA

TIFFANY ANN COLE,

Appellant,

v.

STATE OF FLORIDA

Appellee.

Case No. SC13-2245

LOWER TRIBUNAL NO. 16-2005-CF-010263D

 CAPITAL CASE ***

ON APPEAL FROM THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, DUVAL COUNTY, FLORIDA
HON. MICHAEL R. WEATHERBY, CIRCUIT JUDGE

SUPPLEMENTAL REPLY BRIEF CONCERNING HURST v. FLORIDA

December 19, 2016

For Appellant:

Wayne Fetzer Henderson
Fla. Bar No. 347965
222 San Marco Avenue
Saint Augustine, FL 32084
Tel: (904) 823-1232
Email: hoteon@gmail.com

RECEIVED, 12/19/2016 09:38:26 PM, Clerk, Supreme Court

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF CONTENTS.....i

TABLE OF CITATIONS.....ii

INTRODUCTION.....1

ARGUMENT - Remand Is Appropriate in Light of Hurst.....1

 A. Appellee Is Incorrect Regarding Appellant’s
 Preservation of a Hurst Claim.....2

 B. Appellee is Incorrect That Hurst Does Not Apply to
 Appellant.....3

 C. Appellant Is Incorrect That Appellant’s Hurst Error Is Harmless.....8

 D. There Are No Automatic Aggravators in Florida.....10

CONCLUSION.....10

TABLE OF CITATIONS

Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000).....3
Bottoson v. Moore, 833 So.2d 693 (Fla. 2002).....2
Caldwell v. Mississippi, 472 U.S. 320 (1985).....6
Danforth v. Minnesota, 552 U.S. 264 (2008).....4
Falcon v. State, 162 So.3d 954 (Fla. 2015).....4
Franklin v. State, 2016 WL 6901498(Fla. Nov. 23, 2016).....7, 10
Hildwin v. Florida, 490 U.S. 639 (1989).....2, 3
Hitchcock v. Dugger, 481 U.S. 393 (1987).....3
Hurst v. Florida, 136 S.Ct. 616 (2016).1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10
Hurst v. State, 2016 WL 6036978 (Fla. Oct. 14, 2016).....7, 8
Johnson v. State, 904 So.2d 400 (Fla. 2005).....2, 3
King v. Moore, 831 So.2d 143 (Fla. 2002).....2
Linkletter v. Walker, 381 U.S. 618 (1965).....4
Maryland v. Baltimore Radio Show, Inc., 338 U.S. 912 (1950).....5
Missouri v. Jenkins, 515 U.S. 70 (1995).....5
Montgomery v. Louisiana, 136 S.Ct. 718 (2016).....5
O’Sullivan v. Boerckel, 526 U.S. 838 (1999).....1
Powell v. State, 2016 WL 7243546 (Del. Dec. 15, 2016).....5
Ring v. Arizona, 536 U.S. 584 (2002).....1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 9, 10
Schriro v. Summerlin, 542 U.S. 348 (2004).....4
Spaziano v. Florida, 468 U.S. 447 (1984).....2, 3
Stovall v. Denno, 388 U.S. 293 (1967).....4
Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288 (1989).....3, 4, 5
Thompson v. State, 410 So.2d 500 (Fla. 1982).....2
Witt v. State, 387 So.2d 922(Fla. 1980).....3, 4, 5
United States v. Carver, 260 U.S. 482 (1923).....5

STATUTES

§ 921.141, Fla.Stat.....10

OTHER AUTHORITIES

Florida Rules of Appellate Procedure Rule 9.210.....11

INTRODUCTION

This Court directed Appellant to file a supplemental reply brief no later than five days after the filing of Appellee's supplemental answer brief. Appellant responds to Appellee's arguments as follows.

ARGUMENT

Remand Is Appropriate in Light of Hurst.

As previously stated in the supplemental brief regarding Hurst v. Florida, 136 S. Ct. 616 (2016), Appellant requests that her case be remanded to the trial court to plead a claim for sentencing relief under Hurst or be granted an evidentiary hearing to determine the effect of Hurst error in her case.

A. Appellee is Incorrect Regarding Appellant's Preservation of a Hurst Claim.

Although Appellee asserts that Appellant has not preserved a Hurst claim because she only raised a claim under Ring v. Arizona, 536 U.S. 584 (2002) on direct appeal did not again raise such a claim during her post-conviction proceedings, Appellee fails to provide any legal support for the assertion that raising a Ring claim twice is required to preserve a Hurst claim. Appellee Brief at 7. To the extent that a previously raised Ring claim is required at all for preservation of a Hurst claim, Appellant has satisfied that requirement by raising her Ring claim on direct appeal. Appellant Brief at 2-3; cf. O'Sullivan v. Boerckel, 526 U.S. 838, 845 (1999) (federal habeas claims are considered exhausted and preserved where there has been one complete round of state-court review, whether on direct appeal or in a post-conviction appeal). In fact, if Appellant had tried to raise the Ring claim in subsequent proceedings, this Court would have barred it. Thompson v. State, 410 So.2d 500, 501 (Fla. 1982) (collateral relief proceedings may not be used as a vehicle to retry issues previously litigated on direct appeal). Here, Appellant previously presented her Ring claim during her direct appeal proceedings and did all she could to challenge Florida's unconstitutional death penalty statute prior to the Supreme Court's Hurst decision.

B. Appellee Is Incorrect that Hurst Does Not Apply to Appellant.

Appellee wrongly asserts that Hurst does not apply to Appellant on retroactivity grounds and mistakenly relies on prior decisions from this Court regarding Ring that have no further validity in light of Hurst. Not only have those decisions been effectively overruled in the wake of Hurst, but Hurst itself is a more robust constitutional decision than Ring and addresses a Florida statute that differed in critical ways from the Arizona law in Ring. Appellant Brief at 9. Although this Court, in Bottoson v. Moore, 833 So.2d 693 (Fla. 2002), King v. Moore, 831 So.2d 143 (Fla. 2002), and Johnson v. State, 904 So.2d 400 (Fla. 2005), held that Ring was inapplicable in Florida because the United States Supreme Court previously had approved of Florida's capital sentencing scheme in Hildwin v. Florida, 490 U.S. 638 (1989), and Spaziano v. Florida, 468 U.S. 447 (1984), the Supreme Court in Hurst explicitly overruled Hildwin and Spaziano, leaving this Court's decisions in the cases relied upon by Appellee with no remaining validity. See Hurst, 136 S. Ct. at 616 ("We now expressly overrule Spaziano and Hildwin in relevant part Time and subsequent cases have washed away the[ir] logic . . ."). As with Hitchcock v. Dugger, 481 U.S. 393 (1987), Hurst now has held that this Court misconstrued Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000), and Ring as having no application to Florida's capital sentencing statute. Thus, "[c]onsiderations for fairness and uniformity" cannot justify denying the benefit of Hurst to those like Appellant whose death sentences were final before Hurst was issued. See Witt, 387 So.2d at 925. Appellee's reliance on Johnson, thus, is no longer valid. Appellee Brief at 14.

Furthermore, contrary to Appellee's suggestion, Witt v. State, 387 So.2d 922 (Fla. 1980), is the appropriate retroactivity test. The federal Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288 (1989), test is not relevant to this Court's analysis. Though Appellee concedes that Hurst meets two of the three Witt prongs, Appellee Brief at 14, Appellee wrongly argues that Hurst does not constitute a development of fundamental significance. Appellee Brief at 14. As explained in Appellant's initial supplemental brief, Hurst does constitute a development of fundamental significance because it is "of sufficient magnitude to necessitate retroactive application as ascertained by the three-fold test of the United States Supreme Court's decisions in Stovall v. Denno, 388 U.S. 293 (1967), and Linkletter v. Walker, 381 U.S. 618 (1965)." Falcon v. State, 162 So.3d 954, 961 (Fla. 2015) (quoting Witt, 387 So.2d at 929) (internal brackets omitted). The fundamental significance of Hurst is clear when considered in light of "(a) the purpose to be served by the new rule; (b) the extent of reliance on the old rule; and (c) the effect on the administration of justice of a retroactive application of the new rule." Witt, 387 So.2d at 926. Tellingly, several federal and state courts throughout Florida have stayed cases with Hurst claims pending this Court's ruling on retroactivity. This Court has stayed the executions of inmates and granted some inmates Hurst relief while grappling with the various issues presented by Hurst claims.

Moreover, there is good reason why this Court adheres faithfully to Witt over Teague v. Lane, 489 U.S. 288 (1989), as the federal retroactivity test announced in Teague was designed with "[c]omity interests and respect for state autonomy" in mind. Schriro v. Summerlin, 542 U.S. at 364. Teague was never intended to prohibit a state from granting broader retrospective relief in reviewing its own state convictions. See Danforth v. Minnesota, 552 U.S. 264, 280-81 (2008). Additionally, the United States Supreme Court's ruling in Schriro, which held that Ring is not retroactive in federal habeas proceedings, does not impact the retroactivity of Hurst under either Witt or Teague. Even if Teague is applied, Hurst would be retroactive under the federal approach, either as a substantive or procedural matter. Most recently, the Supreme Court of Delaware used Teague and its progeny to find Hurst constitutes a "new watershed procedural rules of criminal procedure that must be applied retroactively in Delaware." See Powell v. State, 2016 WL 7243546 (Del. Dec. 15, 2016). It is also noteworthy that the Supreme Court's prior reticence to hold Ring retroactive under Teague may be eroding, as highlighted by the recent retroactivity decision in Montgomery v. Louisiana, 136 S. Ct. 718 (2016). See Appellant Brief at 5.

Appellee also argues that the United States Supreme Court has denied certiorari review on some Hurst cases involving "recidivist aggravators," thus indicating its unwillingness to depart from the Ring harmless error exception for aggravators based on prior or contemporaneous offenses. Appellee Brief at 11. However, it is well-established that "[t]he denial of a writ of certiorari imports no expression of opinion upon the merits of the case." Missouri v. Jenkins, 515 U.S. 70, 85 (1995) (quoting United States v. Carver, 260 U.S. 482, 490 (1923); see also Maryland v. Baltimore Radio Show, Inc., 338 U.S. 912, 919 (1950) (denial of writ of certiorari "carries no support whatever for concluding that either the majority or the dissent in the court below correctly interpreted the scope of our decisions").

Appellee also misconstrues Caldwell v. Mississippi, 472 U.S. 320 (1985). Caldwell was not solely about a prosecutor's argument, Appellee Brief at 17, but rather held that a capital sentence is invalid where it is imposed by a jury after the jury has been told that the ultimate responsibility for determining the appropriateness of the sentence rested elsewhere and not with the jury. Id. at 328-29. Indeed, the Supreme Court "has always premised its capital punishment decisions on the assumption that a capital sentencing jury recognizes the gravity of its task and proceeds with the appropriate awareness of its truly awesome responsibility." Id. at 341 (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, without even being certain, to the exclusion of all reasonable doubt, that the jury would have made the same death sentence recommendation without the Hurst error in this case, the error cannot be harmless. The State's inability in light of Caldwell to even show that the jury would have inevitably made the same recommendation only highlights that Appellant's two 9-3 jury recommendations cannot be shown beyond a reasonable doubt to have had no impact on her sentence. And, as noted above, a jury properly advised of its role could have found the requirements for imposing the death penalty satisfied, but nonetheless recommended a life sentence. Hurst, 2016 WL 6036978, at *13 (“we do not intend to diminish or impair the jury’s right to recommend a sentence of life even if it finds aggravating factors were proven, were sufficient to impose death, and that they outweigh the mitigating circumstances.”).

Finally, Appellee’s harmless error arguments regarding “automatic” aggravators are misplaced. This Court, as Appellee acknowledges, has rejected the State’s contention that prior convictions for other violent felonies insulate a death sentence from Ring and Hurst v. Florida.” Appellee Brief at 10; see Franklin v. State, 2016 WL 6901498, at *6 (Fla. Nov. 23, 2016). As a result, notwithstanding the specific aggravators that the State pursued at sentencing, further trial court proceedings are necessary in this case to determine as a matter of fact, beyond a reasonable doubt, whether the Hurst error in Appellant’s case was harmless. This Court cannot determine, without first remanding for evidentiary proceedings, whether a jury in a hypothetical capital sentencing proceeding that complied with Hurst would have made the same “sufficiency” findings as the trial judge in any particular case, even where one or more of the aggravating circumstances were permissibly found by the judge. A determination of whether an individual would have been sentenced to death, notwithstanding the Sixth Amendment infirmity baked into Florida’s now-invalidated capital sentencing system, would require the Court to hypothesize—in an imaginary proceeding consistent with Hurst—whether the jury would have found “sufficient” aggravating circumstances for a death sentence, and whether the jury would have found that any mitigating circumstances were “insufficient” to outweigh the aggravating circumstances.

C. Appellee Is Incorrect That Appellant’s Hurst Error is Harmless.

Appellee asserts that any error in Appellant’s penalty phase proceedings is harmless error. Appellee Brief at 19-22. To further support such argument, Appellee states that the jury “heard the facts of the two murders she committed during the guilt phase” and that the two 9-3 recommendations should not be reversed and remanded for a new sentencing simply because of the jury’s recommendation. Appellee Brief at 20. However, Appellee fails to present any evidence that the jury findings were harmless in Appellant’s case.

This Court has held that the burden is on the State to establish that there is “no reasonable possibility that the error contributed to the sentence.” Hurst, 2016 WL 6036978, at *23. Without an evidentiary hearing, this Court would be constrained to conduct harmless error review based on its own or the parties’ speculation, which this Court made clear, is not permissible. Id. at *3. An evidentiary hearing is necessary to determine whether the State can demonstrate beyond a reasonable doubt that any difference in counsel's strategy had no reasonable probability of affecting Appellant's sentence. At a hearing on whether the Hurst error in her penalty phase was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt, Appellant could present evidence, that (1) defense counsel's approach to diminishing the weight of the aggravating factors above would have been different had counsel known that the jury, not the judge, would make the critical findings of fact, and (2) there would have been a different sentencing result.

D. There Are No Automatic Aggravators in Florida.

There is no bar on Appellant's Hurst claim by virtue of the fact that among the aggravating factors found by the trial judge at her sentencing were aggravators based on contemporaneous felonies. Although Ring referred to an exception approving of Arizona judges, rather than juries, finding certain aggravating factors such as one based on a prior felony conviction, the same exception was not held to apply to Hurst in either the United States Supreme Court's or this Court's decisions, and in fact does not apply to Hurst.

As previously stated, Appellant Brief at 23-25, the Ring exception does not apply to Hurst because, as described earlier, the Florida death penalty law under which Appellant was sentenced, unlike the Arizona law at issue in Ring, required not only that one or more aggravating factors be found to impose a death sentence, but also required factual determinations that "sufficient aggravating circumstances exist" to impose a death sentence, and that "there are insufficient mitigating circumstances to outweigh the aggravating circumstances." Fla. Stat. § 921.141(3) (emphasis added). Thus, unlike in a Ring claim, the presence of a single aggravating factor or even multiple aggravating factors are not enough to say that the death penalty was properly imposed in Florida.

In other words, although the jury may have inevitably made the same findings of fact as Appellant's judge with respect to an aggravating factor based on Appellant's prior or contemporaneous felonies, it cannot be assumed that the jury would have made the same sufficiency determination as the judge. This Court also rejected in Franklin "the State's contention that Franklin's prior convictions for other violent felonies insulate Franklin's death sentence from Ring and Hurst v. Florida." Franklin, 2016 WL 6901498, at *6.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Appellant should be given the opportunity to present her Hurst issue to the circuit court or be granted an evidentiary hearing to present evidence regarding the impact the Hurst error had upon her sentencing.

Respectfully submitted,

Wayne Fetzer Henderson
Fla. Bar No. 347965
222 San Marco Avenue
Saint Augustine, FL 32084
Tel: (904) 823-1232
Email: hoteon@gmail.com

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing was furnished by email to the Office of the Attorney General, Carolyn M. Snurkowski, carolyn.snurkowski@myfloridalegal.com on December 19, 2016.

Wayne Fetzer Henderson

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

I CERTIFY that the size and style of type used in this brief is 12-point "Courier New," in compliance with Fla.R.App.P. 9.210(a)(2).

Wayne Fetzer Henderson